

ABSTRACT

In a cruise control system for motor vehicles having a stop-and-go function for automatically keeping the vehicle stopped and a shutoff function for automatically shutting off the 5 cruise control system when the brake pedal is being operated, the shutoff function is not operational if predefined conditions are met, including the condition that the velocity is not greater than a predefined shutoff velocity.